SULLIVAN MADE HIT WITH BIG AUDIENCE

Jake Kilrain, Proves to Be a New Man of Mystery---Booze, Said John L., Responsible for Jeffries's Defeat by Johnson, Just as It Helped to Finish Him.

BY GUS MALBERT.

Sullivan, of Bawston, just plain John L., from Boston, if you prefer, is in Richmond. Along with the hero of the ring which has four corners came Jake Kilrain, the man who went the long route of seventyfive rounds with the "champion of caampions, and probably the man who first introduced modern ring tactics. Sullivan is the most popular puglist that ever appeared here, and an audience which packed itself into every available corner of the Bijou, and, in the parlance of the vaudevillian, "hung from the ceiling," was out to give the hand of welcome to its favorite.

Jake Kilrain, in addition to accompanying the one and only John, has developed a new man of mystery. The old-time sports who remember every ring battle from Jem Mace's first appearance to the mere imitations of today, are dubious as to whether the boylsh figure that acts as a fence for Sullivan's big hulk during the three short rounds sparred is Jake. No less a person than Harry Tucker declared that it was not Jake, and Walter Calvin, friend of Pop Shibe, Harry Davis, Ty Cobb and others, says the same thing. Even Jack Heinz, who is so familiar with Sullivan that he calls him "Jawn," and lived next door to him in Boston, declared that Jake was bot Jake.

Drank Too Much.

"My explanation of the cause of Jeffries's defeat is this: For six years after his retirement from the ring he kept a saloon in San Francisco. Naturally he was drinking, and he kept a saloon in San Francisco. Naturally he was drinking, and he was that he was in London. The early on sports, says that John L. can bell. But last night, after a telephone sessage to Louis Myers, manager off and belief the man was Jake Kilrain, and the to the best of his knowledge and belief the man was Jake Kilrain, and eclared that he was and is the help that the was and is the lift of the man was Jake Kilrain, he man who fought Sullivan seventy er counds. Well, if Kilrain admits he believed, for if Kilrain doesn't know he he is, then obviously something wrong. Anyway, it was a good one, if am not a problitionity results in the second of the part of the cause of Jeffries's defeat is this: For six years after his retirement from the ring after his retirement from the ring

L told his version of the JeffriesJohnson fight. Jeffries never had a dook in, according to me venerable dighter. "It wasn't a fight. It was a farce," he said. "Jeffries was licked before he entered the ring. I remarked two years before the fight that Jeffries could never come back,
and when I got at the ringside I told the newspaper men, of whom I wasone, being out there to write the story, that if Jeffries weighed 252 pounds in the first round he would weigh 300 in the second and 400 in the third.

"My predictions came town. The

"My predictions came true. The black man toyed with him. He put him down three times in the fifteenth. Corbett, over in Jeffries's corner had been urging Johnson to fight and asking him what he was doing. Johnson replied, 'You come in the ring after it's over and I'll do the same to you, Mr. Corbett.'
